Two New-York singers are just now attracting ir amount of attention in London. Miss Agne Huntington has entered the field of comic operetta and on January 12 came forward at Mr. Sedger's tre as the title character in "Paul Jones," a nev speretta by Mr. Farnic and Planquetic. The news papers generally comment on her stature and her ("divinely tall and most clvinely fair," say Daily Telegraph," sallantly and predict a great popular success for nor. Mr. Max Heinrich peas popular success for m.v. Mr. Max interior has been giving vocal and pianetoric recitals in c.n. function with Mr. Emanuel Moo. and Miss Lens Little, both of whom figured in New-York's invited folings a few seasons ago. "The Daily Telegraph's as discovered that Mr. Heinrich is "really a vocaliss—which can be said of few Germans or German-Americans—and he is a musician to boot." The critics seem to appreciate highly Mr. Heinrich's ability as an accompanist of his own shiging.

A WEDDING.

At the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Pifth-ave, and Forty-fifth-st., yesterday afternoon Miss Fannie Black-stone Freeman was married to Dr. Louis Livingston Seaman, of this city, the Rev. D. Parker Morgan officiating. The bride is a descendant of Sir William Blackstone, the eminent English jurist, and her indfather, Wyllis Blackstone, who died a few years ago, was held in high esteem. Dr. Seaman is a direct dant of Philip Livingston, who was a signer as well as a framer of the Declaration of Independence his great-grandfather, Willett Seaman, was one of the first Commissioners of the Poor in New-York, and one of the founders of the Society of the New-York Rospital. (His grandfather, Valentine Seaman, studied with Dr. Jenner, and introduced vaccination in this city. Dr. Seaman was at one time resident surgeon at Ward's Island, and for six years chief of surgeon at Ward's Island, and for six years chief of staff at Blackwell's Island. He now practises cousin, Frederick J. Huntington, who gave her away. She wore a rich dress of white faille francaise trimmed with point applique lace, and held a bouquet of Marcohal Niel roses. Her veil was of tulle, edged with point lace, and she wore a diamond sun, the bride groom's gift, and a diamond brooch, the gift of a relative. As the bridal party entered the church the nuptial music from "Lohengrin" was played. The bridegroom with his best man, Arthur F. Bowers, awaited the bride at the chancel. There were bridesmalds. The ushers were Irving Paris, Dr. H. S. penheimor, Frank MacFarland, Wayland Carlin, nes A. Garland, Jr., and Charles D. Harrison. As the bridal party left the church the "Wedding March" Mendelssohn was played.

A reception followed at the home of Dr. Seaman, 18 West Thirty-first-st., which will be the home of the pair on their return from a wedding trip. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Austin Hunting. ton, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Huntington, Miss Lulu Black-stone Freeman, sister of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Jordan L. "THE WATER OUBEN" AT NIBLO'S.

Nible's Garden is the scene of another Kiralfy spectacle this week. Its name is "The Water Queen," and Belessy Kiralfy is its introducer. In few respects does it differ from its many predecessors. Spectacle seems to have fallen into a regulation rut, and Bolossy Kirally has certainly not in this instance made any strong effort to drag it out into novel paths. There is changes of costume, more or less pretty, but in no case especially striking. The dancing of the corps do ballet cannot be highly commended, but the premiere skill and is ably supported by Mile. Cappellini. till these dancers appear, in the second act, do the sudiences exhibit any enthusiasm, but from that time in the piece goes fairly well, being largely helped to that and by the acrobatic efforts of the Herbert Brothers and the musical anties of the Alexandrows Ac Amazonian march in the last act, well led by Miss Hattle Grinnell, exhibits the training and abilities of the ballet to far hetter advantage than the dancing does. It is as good work of this kind as has been

The scenery is generally effective, but is not remarkably gorgeous or elaborate. Nothing need be said about the members of the dramatic cast, for they are of even less importance than customary in spectacle. The comic dialogues and business are decidedly weak. It seems singular that the producers of spectacles scarcely ever think it worth their while to consider the desirability of securing reasonably good and bright dialogues.

A MARQUISE SUES A MARQUIS. Washington, Feb. 12 (Special). Nina Wright de Potestad, whose romantic marriage to the Marquis de Potestad, of the Spanish Legation, while the latter was on his deathbed, is still fresh in the memory of a certain circle of Washington society, appeared to-day in court as a complainant against the Marquis de Cham-bran, of Washington, to recover the sum of $1,674. The affidavit signed by her sets forth that she first me the Marquis de Chambrun in 1886 in an apartment house. In October of that year her husband died, and the Marquis called upon her and her mother, showing every mark of sympathy. During the winter his visits were almost daily. In November, 1886, she gave him a check for $373 to have cashed and paid her. check was left by her husband, and she states that the Marquis told her that she would have to be appointed administratrix, and he took her to the court house and she was so appointed. She says that the defendant never paid her the money, but she learned that he had had it cashed. She further states that she intrusted him with the payment of $2,000 due on houses built at Nos. 1,103 and 1,105 Sixtoenth-st, and he then told her that unless she had vouchers showing that the sub-contractors were paid that liens might be placed on the houses, but he would charge her nothing for his personal services to attend to this. She states that in March, 1887, she sent defendant a check for $2,500, and sailed for France, and when her mother joined her in the fail she brought word that her bills had all been paid. The Marquis, however, shortly atterward applied for $1,250 to pay liens. She found that the $500 paid De Chambrun was charged against her. He has failed to settle, and she now sues him. intrusted him with the payment of $2,000 due on

THE LIEDERKRANZ INDIGNANT.

ITS MEMBERS WILL SEND A PROTEST TO THE MAYOR AND THE POLICE COMMISSIONERS.

The usually conservative German Liederkranz has not been so thoroughly stirred for years as it is just now over what its members call the "unseemly and unwarranted conduct of the police" at the society's ball on Thursday at the Metropolitan Opera House. The feeling was not aroused on account of the stop ping of the sale of liquor at 1 a. m., but it is due to the alleged outrageous manner in which the police conducted themselves. The society has formulated a protest which will be presented to the Mayor and the Police Commissioners. The society held a large meeting last night at the club-house, at which the action was resolved upon. William Vigelius, second vice-president; Paul Goepel, ex-president; ex-Judge Joseph Koch, F. R. Minrath and Excise Commissioner John Von Glahn are the committee.

Police Superintendent Murray and Commissione:
Voorhis said yesterday afternoon that the decision of Judge Daniels compelled the police to stop the sale of wine and all kinds of liquor at the Liederkranz bail promptly at 1 a. m. At every ball in the city, they said, the same rule will be adhered to strictly until there is a change in the law.

Many desirable things, including board and rooms, household and other help, are advertised to-day on the fourth and fifth pages of The Tribune.

> An interesting discussion is going on concerning the proper color for a racehorse. Kentucky turfmen disagree like doctors as to the effect color has on speed and bottom, but a preponderance of opinion seems to be in favor of dark bay, with chestnut as a strong second choice. The Arabs have curious theories on this subject, some of which appear in the following anecdote, taken from a recently published French book: Ben Dyar, a renowned chief of the desert, happening to be pursued one day by Sand-el-Zenaty, turned to his son and asked, "What horses are in front of the enemy?" replied the son. "It is well; let us make for the sunny side and they will melt away like butter. Some time after Ben Dyar again turned to his son and said, "What horses are in front of the enemy?" Black herses," cried his son, "It is well; let us make for stony ground and we shall have nothing to fear. They are the negroes of the Soudan, who cannot walk with bare feet upon the flints." He changed his course and the black horses were speedily distanced. A third time Ben Dyar asked, "And not what horses are in front of the enemy !" chestnuts and dark bays." "In that case," said Ben Dyar, "strike out, my children, strike out, and give your horses the heel, for these perchance might evertake us had we not given barley to ours all the summer through."

This recalls the venerable rhyme that every farmer's boy learns as soon as he can talk:

"One white foot, buy him; Two white feet, try him; Three white feet, look well about him;

Four white feet, go without him."

Yet some one calls attention to the fact that the elebrated Flying Childers had four white feet, the equally celebrated Eclipse three, Fashion two and

The crawds which throng the corridors of the Metropolitan Museum of Art on "free" days almost lead one to believe that nothing short of a general holiday could produce such an effect. The capacit of the building, notwithstanding the extensive enlarge ment which it has recently undergone, is on these occasions utilized to the utmost degree. It is easy enough to tell which are "free" and which "pay The character and number of the visitors are sure indications in either case. On "free" days the oustle and confusion and cagerness of the crowd are incessant; the merits and demerits of the exhibits the statuary, and the paintings, are discussed it popular terms, and the characteristic nature of st elbowing here, the pushing there, and the obtrusive sight-seeing of the more selfish visitors. All is changed on the days on which an admission fee charged. An air of leisure and of studious observa nes, motives and studies are discussed in profes onal vocabulary; the art students diligently quietly pursue their work, and the galleries have the general appearance of a private exhibition. Thus, throughout the week the Museum performs its mission of elevating and instructing the taste and the finer sonses of the people.

PRINCE BISMARCK WORRIED AND ILL.

DISTURBED BY PARTY INTRIGUES-THE CRIST

IN FRANCE-DE LESSEPS'S HEALTH. Berlin, Feb. 12 .- Prince Bismarck's attack of ne ralgia is complicated with rheumatism, renal disorder, want of appetite and insomnia. He continues to work against the advice of his doctors. His visits to the Chancellerie are marked with frequent outbursts of all parties. Apart from his morbid physical condition, party in trigues aiming to sap his influence with the Emperor worry the Chancellor more than ever. Count von Walderson, whom the ultra-Conservatives hope to the Chancellor by getting the Emperor to assent to the stopping of the action against the "Kreuz Zeitung." A court report says that when Bismarck went to the Schloss to protest that the action must proceed he was kept waiting a quarter of an hour in an ante-chamber; that in a fit of violent rage he told Chamberlain Mir-bach that the delay was an intentional insult arranged by the cabal against him, and that the Emperor, hearing the broil, left his room hurriedly, apologized to the Chancellor, succeeded in calming him and obtained his assent to the abandonment of the prosecution. Bis-marck, if in sound health, would probably care little for the enmity of the ultra-Conservatives. He can afford to despise the Waldersee clique. But he fears

The Senate is expected to reject revision in any form as inopportune. The defeat of M. OPENING THE ART MUSEUM AT NIGHT.

HOW MAYOR GRANT'S VETO HAS DELAYED THE EXPERIMENT.

Plans have been prepared by the trustees of the Museum of Art for placing an electric light plant in the building. The proposition made by the city in December that the trustees should open the Museum two evenings of each week, was at suce adopted by the trustees at a special meeting called for that purpose. It was decided that electric lights would be preferable to gas in lighting the building, and the cost would not be greater. Trustee Weston, who is the architect of the board, prepared the plans for lighting and it was determined to ask the Park Board to permit the contract for the plant to be awasied without the formal advertising. This would enable a company to put the plant in at once, and it was expected that the Museum could be opened by the middle of February. The Park Commissioners favored this action and recommended it to the Board of Aldermen, but, owing to the changes in that board on the first of the year no action was taken until a week ago. The resolution as passed by the board then came before Mayor Gran and was vetoed by him. The contract will now have to be advertised in the usual way before it is awarded and it will be several months before the lights can be placed in the building. General di Cesnola, director of the Museum, said yesterday that he thought there had been a misunderstanding of the resolution on the part of the Mayor.

"I have been sick," continued the Director, "and was not able to see Mayor Grant personally, or was not anie to see Mayor Grain personally, or could have explained to him that the resolution was merely to save time and to permit the Museum to be opened at night to the public as soot as possible. I think if this had been understood and if he had known his veto would delay the opening of the Museum at night for nearly six months, he would have signed the resolution of the Board of Aldermen."

SELECTIONS FROM THE MAIL.

THINKS THE PUBLIC SHOULD STRIKE.

Sir: As it now appears that the great "strike" of the urface railroad employes is about at an end, the interesting inquiry that has suggested itself to me is: Will the companies now make reprisals upon the public to indemnify themselves for the losses they have

Whatever the grievances of the men employed to bransport the public may have been, and they cor-tainly had several substantial ones, the public has had, now has, and probably always will have, ample reason to "strike." Against the two lines which I must frequently use the Avenue B Line and the Forty-second-st, and the Grand-st. ferry line-there is constant and serious cause for complaint. The "head and front of their offending" lies in the fact that they never furnish cars in sufficient number to cope with the demands for transportation during certain hours of the day and The Avenue B line is patronized largely by work ing people, and between the hours of 6:30 and 7 a. m. and 5:30 and 7 p. m. each car is overcrowded and hundreds of passengers must stand during almost the entire trip. In stormy weather the close packing of people of both sexes in these boxes on wheels is not only offensive and very uncomfortable but extremely deleterious to health and morals. The same thing is equally true as to the other line, with this addition. that those cars are also overcrowded every evening by people on their way to and from places of amuso

Often have passengers been left standing on a corne in rain, snow and cold, to the detriment of health. temper and engagement, while one car after another has passed by crowded to the dashboards. Men suffe less than women from this cause, being able, when alone, to jump aboard and occupy one square foot of space on the step of a platform, only to find them space on the step of a platform, only to find mean-selves spotted with mud from head to foot. Such are some of the miseries we patiently andure. Will the companies increase them now? Unfortunately the public cannot or will not "strike," and apparently there is no other remedy. Whatever sympathy we may extend to any one now, surely these corporations are not entitled to any of it. New-York, Feb. 6, 1880.

THAT WAIL OF "THE VOICE." To the Editor of The Tribune.

Sir: The hue and cry made by "The Voice" over those mailing lists is like the Irishman's comment on the squealing pig, "a good deal of noise for a little How did "The Voice" obtain its clergymen's list? It was taken from the general minutes of the eonfurences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, North and South, and from the year books of other de-nominations. The National Committee of as good right to use these as had "The Votee," and if documents were sent to ministers by either party it would be nothing strange. Indeed, I have received such from

I think after your expose of Messra. Funk and Wage nalls, in a recent number of The Tribune, namely, offering for sale the so-called clergyman's list, was enough to quiet them for a while. How came Repubhean documents, or Democratic documents, inside copies of "The Voice," which must have been sent out of "The Voice" office) Such were sent. How explain that? Mesers, Quay and Clarkson were not respon-sible for that, surely. Riverhead, L. L., Jan. 30, 1889.

EVEN GREAT HOMER SOMETIMES NODS. To the Editor of The Tribune.

Sir: I have only two or three little flaws to pick with The Tribune Almanae for 1880, viz.: Page 30, William E. Simmonds, should be William E. Simonds. Washington L. Wilcox, Hartford, should be Washington L. Wilcox, Deep River. Page 31, Nelson W. Nutting, should be Newton W. Page 36, Le Barron B. Celt should be Le Baron B.

As it is so nearly complete, I think it would have been well to include the new Scnate also. To read 1895, Anthony Higgins, Newcasile, in Roman letters is good for Republican sore cycs.

NOTES OF THE STAGE.

NOTES OF THE STAGE.

A. M. Palmer received from England yesterday the manuscripts of "Targs," a drama by Mrs. Oscar Beringer now being played at the Opera Comique, London, and of "Bootlee's Baby," which has met with considerable success in the British provinces. He also has the manuscript of another successful English play, "Woodbarrow Farm," by J. K. Jerome. The principal topic in theatrical circles yesterday was Miss Minnie Palmer's refusal to play the usual Wednesday matinee at the Grand Opera House. Manager French would give no 'udication of his intentions, but it is generally thought a lawsuit will Henry E. Abbay was back at work in his office yesterday. He says there is no money in Hayana now, and that it is one of the poorest cities he was ever in.

Harry Hine, a well-known theatrical manager, has unexpectedly fallen heir to a considerable fortune. The sale of subscription scats for the Coquelling the season opened yesterday at Palmer's. The demand was large, far exceeding that for the first engagement.

SOME OLD MADEIRA WINE IN SAVANNAH.

From The Savannah News.

Savannah is believed to have the oldest wine in America. A well-known Savannahian, who is a connoissour in wines, said a few days ago that he has a lot of Madeira of the vinitage of 183 — over half a century old.

There are wines in Savannah, though, much older than that. Some of the oldest families here have Madeira nearly a century old. One gentleman has several lots of the famous All Saints Madeira, imported in 1791 and 1793, the year of the great fire in Savannah. Two pipes were imported that year, one for the great-grandiather of the late William Gibbons and one for the father of the late William Gibbons and one for the father of was? Heyward, a prominent South Carolina planter. The aight of the fire one pipe was left under the bluff by mistake and the other was burned upon the hay. The pipe inder the bluff was divided between Gibbons and Heyward as the only fair way of settling their loss. The gendleman who now has several lots of the wine bought it from Gibbons's and Heyward's descendants eighty years after its division.

Then there is the famous Hunter wine, imported about the same time. Some of it is still in the hands of friends of the ramity. The late Mr. De Renne, who inherited some of this wine, was often effered $100 a bottle for it.

One gentleman has over twenty lots imported from the old Madeira house of Newton Gorion from 1802 to 1830. Savannah was a large wine importing port a century $20.

From The Fidladelphia Record.

"Speaking about the effect of High License," said a well-known saloon-keeper yesterday, "did it ever occur to you how the apple crop has been affected? The closing of so many saloons seems to have whetted the public taste for cider and an amazing quantity of country champagne" is soid daily. Even in Heensed saloons the demand for it is tenfold, what it used to be. Cider is an all-around drink, and satisfies appearances as well as appetite. You see the delicate young dudes that stand over a bar and drink do so for appearance sake, and the taste of boer or ale is 'just howible, you naw,' to many of them, while whiskey is out of the question. Now cider looks like either of the two first named beyerages, and makes like soda water, so the deah chapples can walk up to the bar, bravely order cider, and drink it down like an old toper weeks whither?
